

Following Christ Alone

*From Terri Neal, Associate Pastor of Preschool Ministries
With Kurt Bruner, The Center for Strong Families*

Growing in intimate relationship with Jesus Christ is a source of great joy. But it also can be a source of conflict when your spouse doesn't share your commitment to Christ. It makes it more difficult to face life challenges, to make important decisions and even to grow in your faith when you are not both centering your life on God's will.

Even when your spouse is basically a good person, the disconnect of no shared faith in Christ or worrying about where your spouse will go after death can hurt your relationship. It's even worse if your spouse is hostile to your faith.

How can you honor God when your spouse doesn't? Is there anything you can do to help your spouse become a believer?

STEP ONE: Be with believers—but not too much

Christianity is a group faith, something to be lived out among a community of believers. As a body of people following Christ, we give and receive fellowship, comfort and encouragement (1 Corinthians 12:12-27, Galatians 6:2, Philippians 2:4, 2 Corinthians 1:3-4). You need that community of believers, especially others who are following Christ alone in their marriages. But your spouse needs you as well. God designed marriage to be a source of mutual support. You are accountable to the vows you made to your spouse even if he or she is not a believer. To honor both your marital vows and your place in the body of believers, you should commit to regular church involvement that still leaves time for your marriage. There's a better chance your spouse will come to faith if you make time to go to church and he or she sees that God now has priority in your life and has changed you. But if you join every Bible study and volunteer for a broad range of extra activities, it can give the signal that you are no longer committed to meeting the needs of your spouse, especially if you're doing those things to keep yourself occupied apart from your spouse.

STEP TWO: Let your actions be your witness

If you are balancing your involvement in a body of believers with your involvement in your marriage, what can you say to help your spouse become a believer? Not a whole lot. What really influences a spouse more than your words are your actions. To wives of unbelievers, the Apostle Peter said, "Wives, in the same way be submissive to your husbands so that, if any of them do not believe the word, they may be won over without words by the behavior of their wives, when they see the purity and reverence of your lives" (1 Peter 3:1-2). No amount of nagging or persuading can motivate an unbelieving husband toward faith. The best draw will be seeing you live out your faith by showing him respect and loving care like he's never seen before. In his letter to the Ephesians, Paul told husbands to love their wives "just as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for her to make her holy..." (Ephesians 5:25). Husbands are called to love their wives with a sacrificial love with a mind toward her salvation. Sacrificial love can be a difficult task when the object of our love is unappreciative. Our call to love our wives or respect our husbands is not dependent upon our receiving of love or respect in return or the worthiness of the person. It won't be easy and there's no guarantee that it will generate an immediate response. But if you choose to love or respect your spouse as unto the Lord, regardless of how they respond, you can leave the rest up to God, knowing you were faithful.

STEP THREE: Maintain a hopeful perspective

When you are growing within a body of believers and faithfully seeking to serve and esteem your spouse, you can be hopeful. You can't control the timing, but you can believe that God is able to use your commitment to win over even the most reluctant spouse.

GOING FURTHER

Resources

Recommended Book:

These titles are available to check out from the UBC Library or to preview at The Porch. Additional titles on this subject are also available in the Library.

Beloved Unbeliever (by Jo Barry) and Surviving a Spiritual Mismatch in Marriage (by Lee Strobel) provide hope for Christians married to an unbelieving spouse.

Recommended Website:

unequalmarriage.typepad.com “Spiritually Unequal in Marriage” is a blog for those seeking “practical help and encouragement to thrive in a spiritually unequal marriage.”

Church Support

To speak directly with a staff member, please contact:

Terri Neal, Associate Pastor of Preschool Ministries

Terri.Neal@UBC.org

281-488-8517

Married To An Unbelieving Spouse